

NYC Brunch: 12 Restaurants to Try Right Now

by Patty Diez and Greg Morabito · Sep 16, 2016, 3:18p

There are plenty of brunch restaurants to choose from in this city, but all too often they involve lame prix fixe menus, boring egg dishes, and watered down mimosas. But it doesn't have to be that way. Here's a guide to 12 recently-launched brunches that are worth checking out.

Added 9/16: El Atoradero, Sauvage, Freek's Mill, Cherry Point, Nix, BKW

8 Sauvage

Sauvage is the Greenpoint stunner from the award-winning Maison Premiere team. Here, the brunch menu is broken into sections like sandwiches, light and sweet, savory, and salads. Listed under savory is a poached egg focaccia with caviar, a pancake with squash blossoms, and steak and eggs with fries. Eater's senior critic Robert Sietsema is a fan.

Photo: Paul Crispin Quitariano

905 Lorimer Street
New York, NY 11222

\(718\) 486-6816486-6816)